

A SPECIAL EVENT FOR MEMBERS OF THE CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION OF MASSACHUSETTS

"Roman in the Provinces: Art on the Periphery of Empire"

An Exhibit of Roman Art and Artifacts at the McMullen Museum of Art, Boston College

A Guided Tour by one of the Curators, Gail Hoffman, Professor of Classical Studies, Boston College
Saturday, February 28, 2015, 12:00 noon – 1:00 pm

This is an unusual and exclusive opportunity for Latin teachers to see how mosaics, ceramics, sculpture, glass, textiles, coins, and jewelry can help us better understand Roman life outside of Rome itself.

Location: The McMullen Museum of Art is located on the first floor of Devlin Hall, one of the many neo-Gothic buildings on the middle campus. Its street address is 140 Commonwealth Avenue. The Museum is handicapped accessible.

Directions & Parking: By subway: Take the B branch of the MBTA Green Line to the Boston College terminus. Cross to the other side of Commonwealth Avenue and turn right. Walk up the hill (west) on Commonwealth Avenue to the main gate.

By car: The Museum is located on Boston College's Chestnut Hill campus on Commonwealth Avenue. A limited number of museum parking passes are available at the BC campus's main entrance at 140 Commonwealth Avenue. Visitors requiring handicapped parking should also come to the main entrance to be directed to spaces close to the McMullen. One-hour parking is permitted, as posted, on Commonwealth Avenue; parking is also available in the Beacon Street Garage and the Commonwealth Avenue Garage. Click here for further information regarding Boston College visitor parking policies and costs.

Space may be limited at the event, so click here to reserve your spot now!

This event is free and open to members of CAM. Not yet a member? Click here to join. And remember to check our website for other updates, news, and materials of interest to Latin teachers and classicists.
