

Classical Language Pedagogy Workshop Teaching Grammar Communicatively

Hosted by the UMass Boston Classics Faculty
Sponsored by the Classical Association of New England

Classical language educators at all levels are invited to join us for a one-day workshop on evidence-based practices for teaching Latin and Ancient Greek. This year's topic is teaching grammar communicatively. How do second language learners acquire the knowledge and use of syntax and morphology? How can we use the insights of second language acquisition (SLA) research to create more effective grammar lessons? How can we break out of the endless cycle of verb drills and paradigm charts?

Although this workshop is especially designed for early career classical language educators, e.g. those who are new to secondary school teaching or graduate students teaching or TAing language courses for the first time, all Latin and Greek teachers are welcome to participate.

Sat. November 2

9:30 AM - 4:00 PM

In person @ UMass Boston

Free with advance registration.

Register using the QR code by

Oct. 29.

